

Paid for by

Free Enterprise Alliance
4250 North Fairfax Drive, 9th Floor
Arlington, VA 22203

STD PRSRT
U.S. Postage
PAID
SP Graphics

Congressman
Jerry McNerney found
a program in the federal budget
that he wants to cut!

Too bad it's the agency that investigates union corruption.

The Agency that investigates Union Corruption is TOO EFFECTIVE!

Unions want this agency to lose funding... Congressman Jerry McNerney agrees.

Since 2001, the U.S. Office of Labor Management Standards has obtained 889 criminal convictions.* Most of these convictions involved the embezzlement of union funds. It's an epidemic of criminal activity.

Unions have had enough (of the convictions) and convinced Democrat leaders in Congress to cut funding for the Office of Labor Management Standards. When a Congressman from Minnesota tried to restore the funding, Congressman McNerney Voted NO.**

By the way, the restoration of funding for the Office of Labor Management Standards would have been offset by cutting funding to a program at the United Nations. Given the opportunity to choose between funding to an American agency that investigates union corruption or funding for the United Nations, Congressman McNerney chose to fund the United Nations.

Ask Congressman Jerry McNerney to restore funding for the federal agency that investigates union corruption. It protects workers' money - unlike the United Nations.

*Call him at (925) 737-0727
or (209) 476-8552*

* Source: OLMS Press Release, August 26, 2008

** U.S. House of Representatives, Roll Call #642, July 17, 2007

